PLAYERS

ARIANA TADLER

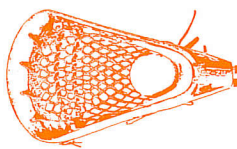

M.H.S. 1982-1985

Born in Queens, New York, Ariana Tadler had no exposure to the sport of lacrosse until she and her family moved to Manhasset in 1976. It wasn't until she was in middle school that a friend encouraged her to pick up a lacrosse stick and give it a try. Uniquely left-handed, Ariana was the starting goalie throughout her entire lacrosse career; first, as a member of the Junior Varsity team while a student at Manhasset Junior High School and then as a member of the Varsity Lacrosse team for Manhasset High School where Pam Monfort was her coach. Tough and unrelenting, Pam demanded the very best from her team, teaching both skills and life lessons. Ariana recalls Pam insisting that she run the same drills as the rest of the team, but with the weight and burden of the goalie gear. Nonetheless, the hard work paid off. In 1985, Manhasset High School's Girls' Varsity Lacrosse Team won the New York State Championship.

Ariana was recruited by several colleges but ultimately declined them in order to attend Hamilton College. While at Hamilton, Ariana played lacrosse during her freshman and sophomore years and was a starting goalie. During her junior year, Ariana moved to London where she met her husband, David Paterson.

Today, Ariana is a managing partner at a major New York law firm where she specializes in securities and consumer law. She is also an accredited speaker on e-discovery. Ariana credits her career success in large part to those who pushed her to the limit to be the very best – people like Pam Monfort and others at Manhasset High School. Oh, and of course, there's that friend who introduced Ariana to the sport of lacrosse, Danielle Gallagher.
